

Figure 1 is a graph showing the results of fileread. "first" is the speed of the first read after the target text was recreated, and "second" is the speed of the second read. As can be seen from the Figure 1, it is clear that the second fileread is faster in execution speed. It is thought that the cache memory has something to do with this.

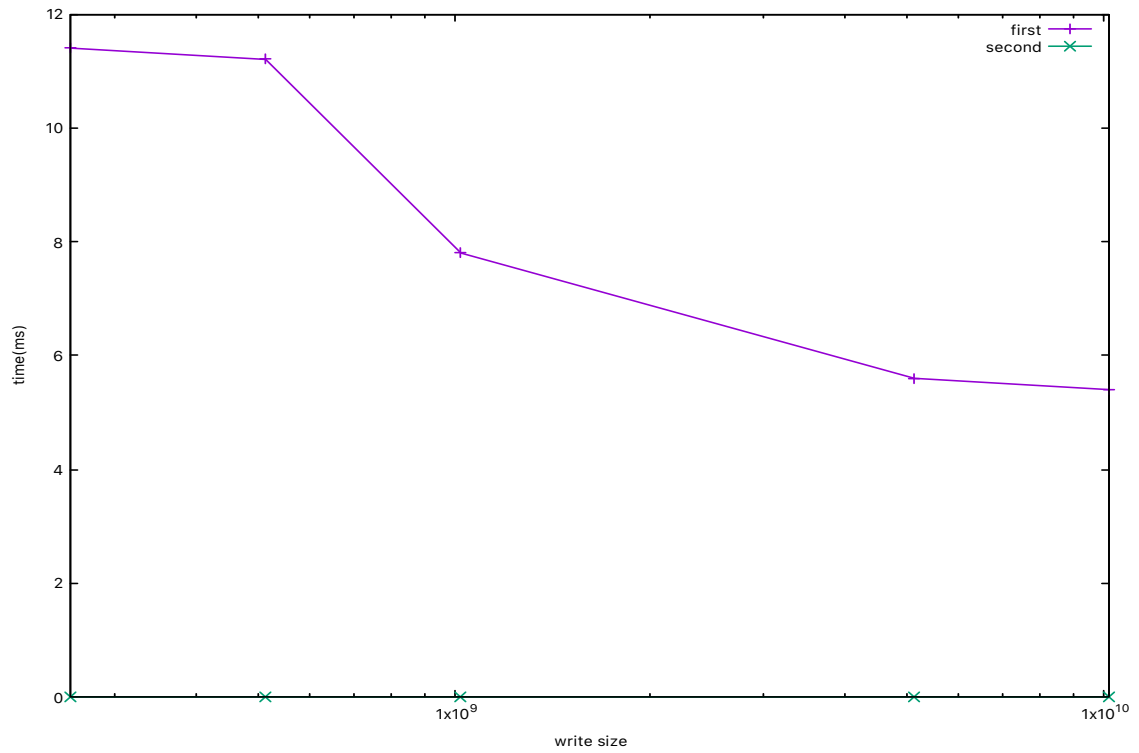

Figure 1: result of fileread